

Tangram Garden is located in the center of Porto, next to Rua do Bonjardim, one of the oldest streets in the city, and Rua de Gonçalo Cristóvão. It has a dynamic layout, alternating between curved and straight lines that converge in central leisure spaces, composed of characteristic city vegetation and topographically planned to restore the water retention cycle. Each area, like the pieces of the "Tangram", serves a specific and complementary purpose to the surrounding environment, becoming a key element in solving present issues and meeting the needs of those who explore it.
